- Are items #1 through #3 above complete?
- Is something wrong with your home?

What is it?

- Do you have pictures, video, notes, or documents about the problem?
- Have you notified your landlord about the problem?

When?

How?

- Has your landlord fixed the problem yet?
If so, how long did it take?
- Did you lose any personal property because of the problem?
- Were you forced to leave your house because of the problem?
- Were you forced to close off any rooms in your house because of the problem?
- Did anyone make or suggest any threats to you because you complained?
- Does your command know about your problem?
- Is your command being supportive of you and your family?
- Are you being charged for something that you don't owe?
- Has anyone touched or threatened to touch you in a way that you didn't want?

If you answered YES to more than TWO of the above, you might have a legal claim that could entitle you to repairs and compensation.

*SAVE (and bring in) all photos, video, copies of communications (letters, texts, and emails) about your housing problem, and a copy of your lease (if you have it).
